SONOMA - - - CAL

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50c. size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N.Y.
The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.
With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

MAKING THINGS DO.

Willing Sacrifices People Will Make In Time of War.

Not the only heroes of war were those who bore the musket and sword. The women and children who stayed at home and kept up heart in spite of the privations of siege are to be numbered among the valiant. A glimpse of some of the southern domestic economies during the civil war is given by Miss M. J. Walsh in her personal recollections printed by the Mississippi Historical society:

Among the glorious achievements of that time the makeshifts at home deserve recognition, for they represent ingenuity and willing sacrifice. As various articles gave out substitutes were found. If no substitute could be invented for an article we simply did without.

Coffee, the southerners' daily beverage, was manufactured from parched corn, burnt corn bread, even burnt molasses. Sweet potatoes cut into small squares, dried, parched and ground were also fised. The stimulating effect was lacking, but it was all the better for our nerves. For tea, young raspberry leaves dried were used.

Sugar was a serious problem, and molasses was as precious as sugar.

"What shall we do when the present supply of Louisiana molasses gives out?" was a burning question, and the only answer was, "Do without."

Grits were eaten for rice. When we wanted soda we swept the fireplace clean and burned corncobs.

Mustard and pepper were made of home grown products. Salt was costly. Every bit was shaken off dry pork and used. All brine was boiled down and dried. Still the supply grew lower and lower. Some one discovered that the dirt floors of the old smokehouses were salt mines, so to speak. The dirt was put in hoppers and run down, the brine boiled and dried.

All new cloth had to be manufactured at home from raw material. The dyestuffs were made from roots, bark, walnuts and indigo.

Shoes were rough affairs made from the hides of beeves, cured by the negroes. Buttons were made of coarse thread or persimmon seeds. Caps were cut out of cloth and hats plaited from palmetto.

Letters were written on the blank leaves of books, the wrong side of wall scraps or old envelopes turned and pasted together.

OLD SAYINGS.

Dean Swift is credited with "Bread is the staff of life."

It was Keats who said, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

Franklin is authority for "God helps those who help themselves."

"Man proposes, but God disposes," remarked Thomas a Kempis.

"All cry and no wool" is an expression found in Butler's "Hudibras."

It was an observation of Thomas Southerne that "Pity's akin to love."

Edward Coke, the English jurist, was of the opinion that "A man's house is his castle."

"When Greeks joined Greeks, then was the tug of war," was written by Nathaniel Lee.

We are indebted to Colley Cibber, not to Shakespeare, for "Richard is himself again."

To Milton we owe "The paradise of fools," "A wilderness of sweets" and "Moping melancholy and moonstruck madness."

The poet Campbell found that "Coming events cast their shadows before" and "'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view."

His Last Retort.

The story is told of a well known Chicago criminal lawyer whose valuable services were retained by the wealthy relatives of a man accused of murder in a southwestern state.

The case was a bad one, for the evidence was overwhelmingly against the accused. Despite this fact the lawyer contrived by the skillful exercise of every trick and maneuver known to the profession to secure the disagreement of juries, delays, appeals, etc., till at last the case was brought before the supreme court of the United States.

One day in an interview between the prisoner and his counsel the former asked, "In case the supreme court should decide against me, what will be my next move?"

"To heaven, I hope," was the candid response of the lawyer.—St. Louis Republic.

Gent and Gemman.

This slang word seems to have come in at first as a mere written contraction. I have found the word laygents in law reports of the seventeenth century, particularly those of Popham and of Davis. In Sir John Northcote's "Note Book," Dec. 2, 1640, Lord Gray is described as saying of one Hallford or Holford "that he is no gent; that in memory of divers he kept hogs." The cognate word gemman can be traced about a century earlier.—London Notes and Queries.

Man and the Earth.

Nobody knows the age of man on earth. The tendency of opinion among scholars is to the effect that the human advent upon this planet took place many tens of thousands of years ago. John Fiske, backed by other high authorities, claims that man lived on the earth as long ago as half a million years.—New York American.

Tears.

"On the right," said a Killarney guide to a party of tourists, "ye'll see a cascade called the Maiden's Tears and on the left a cascade called the Widow's Tears, 'cause it dries up the quickest."

Little Brighteyes

By LOVISE NURRIFIELD.

Copyright, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

That was what Davis had nicknamed her at the first rehearsal of "Flimflam." She was the scrawniest, homeliest girl in the chorus when the girls lined up for first inspection and happened to land in the middle at the lineup. Davis spotted her and called out before everybody in the pleasant, merry little way he had:

"That will do for yours, Little Brighteyes. Never mind about taking the center. We'll save the spot-light when you're around. The back row for yours."

Everybody turned to take a good look at Little Brighteyes before the back row swallowed her forever. She was about thirty, a slim little woman with big gray eyes and dark hair. It was a point of beauty in its own way, that hair, soft and brown and straight as Minnehaha's ever was, but she had tried to marcel it into shape with a home applied curling iron to make her look professional, and it was a sight. But she took her medicine bravely, and even Davis recognized the grit in her.

It was her best asset in the after days, that grit. It carried her through all of Davis' major and minor tantrums and the teasing from the other girls. She said little and worked hard, but the nickname that Davis had given her that first day stuck fast. Even Jennie Reynolds, the wardrobe woman, caught it, and when she was handing out the costumes to the girls she tossed a bunch across the room and called out cheerfully:

"Here you go, Brighteyes!"

And Little Brighteyes just laughed good naturedly, although she had drawn the least artistic clothes in the lot. It didn't matter when one was only the fourth girl in the last row back. She did as Davis had told her and kept out of the spot light.

"That girl's an old timer," Davis remarked to Vida Lorne as the two stood in the first entrance the opening night and watched the girls take a big encore on the "Rattlebang" song. There were sixteen picked out from the little ones in the crowd, and Brighteyes was one of them. It was a jolly, swinging, drummer boy chorus and took the minute it hit the house. The girls were all in scarlet and black, with snare drums, and Little Brighteyes was beating hers for sure, no make believe. The rouge helped her lots, and so did the red and black costume. Her head was held high, just a bit atilt, and her lips were parted in a smile.

Marshall—Nick Marshall that was—the manager, was beside Vida. He watched the skinny little figure on the end thoughtfully as the girls went off.

"She's all right," he said. "Put her on to lead tomorrow night in that chorus, Davis, and see how she goes. She's on to the ropes all right."

Vida leaned forward to get a better look.

"I've seen that girl somewhere, Nick," she said. "Look at her now with that drum. And the way she steps! Who is she?"

"Little Brighteyes," laughed Davis shortly. "That's all she is now anyway, but she's an old timer all right."

Vida laughed, too, as Marshall walked around with her to the big white automobile in which she made her first entrance. The first act showed a mountain scene in a country anywhere between Italy and China. The beautiful American heiress was doing the touring stunt all over Europe, and the prince of the country was in love with her. He had followed the lead of the white automobile all over the map and finally had induced the girl to pay a visit to his own land. She feared possible banditti. He assured her the red and black drummer boys and the army behind them could protect her. And all the time, of course, he merely wanted to get her over the border, abduct her, shut her up in the castled steep fortress (act 2) and starve her into marrying him and filling his stingy little treasury with oodles of American coin. It was a rehash, but it went with a bang. Even before Vida's entrance the thing was a sure success, and Marshall was solidly joyous.

"Be careful and don't lose your head when you take that run," he said as he stood beside the auto while Vida was helped in. It was a good trick, that first entrance of the American girl. They had a mechanical arrangement for the auto to scorch down the mountain pass, and it looked as though it was going straight over the footlights. There were four turns to the run, and then it brought up short right in the center of the stage in a self locking frog and made a mighty effective picture.

"There isn't a bit of danger," answered Vida, drawing on her white gauntlets. "I'm just as cool as can be. Not a bit rattled, thank you. Let her go."

There was the second's pause in the orchestra, then the crash of entrance music, and they released the machine. It took the incline like a boy's coaster—smooth and swift and easy. Davis was white, but Marshall stroked his vandyke and frowned ever so slightly as he watched the car and its occupant. It was a dangerous trick, but it brought down the house.

Marshall stared at Vida. Under the rouge her face was dead white, and he knew she was scared. When she came off the stage she sent for him.

"Nick, I won't go through that again, not if the whole show goes to pieces. I simply can't. It is terrible. Why, it would be like dying every night! I won't ride in that thing again."

Davis suggested a dummy, but Marshall wouldn't stand for any fake. The girl in the machine must be alive, and suddenly Davis suggested Little Brighteyes.

"She's got the same air and build as Miss Lorne, and you can hide the face with a veil. Change the scene so as to carry off the auto long enough for the two to change places after the run, and there you are. And she's the only girl I know who has the grit to do it."

She had the grit. It meant a doubling of her salary, and she made the run night after night, with never a tremor of fear. No one knew the difference. The two women were the same size and the same carriage, and Vida was delighted.

"It's lots of fun," she told Marshall. "It's like hiring some one to die for you, don't you know."

The laughing words flashed across Marshall one night when "Flimflam" was on its third month. He happened to be standing at the foot of the stairs leading up to the platform where the machine stood. As she came by to take her place in it Little Brighteyes had to pass him, and for the first time their eyes met. Marshall never moved when she had gone up the stairs. He had forgotten "Flimflam" and New York. Somewhere, some time, so long ago that he didn't like to remember it or have other people either, one Nick Marshall had run a little one ring circus through the country towns—about thirteen years back—and there had been a girl, a pretty, piquant girl, who rode a horse in the parade and drove a chariot in the funny, shabby little grand entry, and after a couple of years of the one ring circus Nick Marshall had decided his talent lay in New York and had left the circus and the little country towns and other handicaps behind him.

The burst of applause from the front of the house recalled him. The machine was released, and the American heiress incog. was doing her nightly "stunt." And suddenly there was a dull, strange crash, and the music stopped. Marshall spoke over his shoulder as he made for the stage, and they rang down the curtain and started up the music again, for the public must not see unpleasant things when it takes its gayety, and there was a most unpleasant thing lying under the automobile that had turned turtle.

"She isn't dead," said Davis as he and Vida bent over the slim figure in the white suede cloak. "Get her to the hospital and she will pull through. It's only the shoulder smashed."

Marshall pushed the two to one side and lifted the figure in his arms. As he did so Little Brighteyes opened her eyes and smiled up at him.

"Hello, boy," she said faintly. Marshall bent his head and kissed her before the whole crowd.

"Never mind the hospital, Davis," he said quietly. "I'll take Mrs. Marshall home myself."

And the rest watched him as he strode across the stage with his burden out to where a carriage waited at the side door to the theater. Then Vida looked up at Davis and laughed as the stage was cleared for the curtain raising.

"I've known it for weeks," she said. "I tried and tried to think where I had seen her before, and then all at once it came to me. Nick married her back in the circus days and then left her out west in some dead and alive hole, while he came on to New York to try to make good. He made good, but forgot all about any responsibility out west, and she was too proud to hunt him up when she thought he didn't want her. I saw her in comic opera out in Frisco eight or nine years ago. She made a big success in 'Fatinitza.' I remembered her all at once watching her play that drum. But it was her own affair, and I didn't tell. Nick played fair at the climax, didn't he?"

Davis nodded. But as he watched the laughing, pretty face beside him, white to the lips, as when she had taken that first ride down the run, he knew that one other besides Nick had played fair, too—fair to Little Brighteyes.

Whitman's Poetry.

Walt Whitman's poetry, in spite of the long, joggled, lumbering places in it, comes nearer to reaching out to what the modern age is trying to be than any other that we have. Whitman may or may not be considered a poet, but he has outswept the bounds of beauty for human life. He has seen the whole universe in every clod of it. He has God's definition of beauty. Naturally he does not express it as well as God does. His symbolism is crowded with hapless places, and God's symbolism never misses the point, but as the ground plan for a great modern poet—an original or working poet in a new built, new building, working world—Walt Whitman is the first and only figure large enough that the world has had. He had a larger repertory of joys—joys with everyday things that any man might have—than any other poet. His autobiography would take in a larger section of the universe.—Putnam's.

Sleep and Old Age.

There is no question that the quantity of sleep required steadily diminishes from infancy to old age. This is a rather interesting exception to the general rule that, as in many matters, old age returns to the needs of infancy. As regards sleep, old age is more remote in its needs from infancy than is any other period of life. If elderly people obtain good sleep during the first few hours and if they have not lost that delight in reading which we all had in youth, but which so many of us curiously lose, their case is not to be grieved over. The special value of the earliest hours of sleep, by the way, has been proved by psychological experiment. The popular phrase "beauty sleep" is well warranted. It is the early, the deepest, hours of sleep that make for health and beauty.—Pall Mall Gazette.

CYPRESS KNEES.

How They Are Formed—Trees' Curious Blunt Roots.

The cypress knee is a familiar object in all the lowland forests of the south, but there are thousands of northern people who have never seen them, and there are many southern people, too, who have not seen them till they stumbled over them some dark night. The knee is of solid wood, has no limbs or leaves, is anywhere from six inches to six feet in height, and its rounded top and flattened sides give it very much the shape of a human leg bent at the knee till thigh and calf are brought together; hence the appropriate name of "knee."

For a number of years I was curious as to what part the knees played in the life of a cypress tree, writes a correspondent of Forest and Stream, for they are part of its root system and do not grow independently. They were not sprouts, trying to grow into trees, for they never developed branches, and the final conclusion was that their only use was for people to stumble over. How and why such useless appendages to the tree were formed was a mystery until one day when drifting down a deep channel which had been washed through a cypress swamp the secret was exposed.

The earth had been washed away from the roots of some of the trees, and roots in all stages of growth were in sight. None of these roots was less than two and one-half inches thick and of uniform size clear to their tips or rather clear to their blunt ends, for there was no tip.

Nature intended these roots to grow in soft mud, and they were all right for that purpose, but when the blunt end of a root encountered something too hard to push through it bent or buckled in the line of least resistance, and this was generally toward the top of the ground, and the continuing growth of the root pushing the bend further upward made the bend closer, until finally the two arms of the bend were close together and they grew together, with one sheet of bark inclosing both.

STUDY YOUR HORSE.

If the Animal Has Mental Troubles, Try to Remedy Them.

To begin with, does your horse suffer from nostalgia or homesickness? Most horses do, and many really pine away and die from no other cause. We can at least, by making the poor creature thoroughly comfortable, do all in our power to "give his pain surcease" and to make him happy and contented, for than homesickness of the acute and chronic form men knows few more wearing ailments. Is your horse's disposition sociable or misanthropic? You don't know? Well, why not find out? Does it irritate him to have his yokemate or neighbors eating noisily and visibly while he does? Is privacy evidently his preference? Very well, then, by boards or zinc or tin or canvas shut off both sides of his stall at the head so that he may eat in peace and live the isolated life which he prefers.

If he lays back his ears or snaps at his neighbors or fidgets and kicks at the partitions, etc., he does not fancy company—at least at mealtimes—and he will be better, do better and (here the pocket comes in) keep more cheaply if you cater to his fancy. If, on the contrary, a "shy feeder," let him see others eat; even let him by a simple arrangement feed from the same manger as one of his neighbors, which is to be tied up short until Master Dainty has eaten all he will, when, upon allowing the neighbor to partake, the fastidious one will redouble his efforts to eat just to spite the late comer at the feast. The writer has used this plan with many poor feeders from race horses down and always with the best results.—F. M. Ware in Outing Magazine.

Of Interest To Women.

To such women as are not seriously out of health, but who have exacting duties to perform, either in the way of household cares or in social duties and functions which seriously tax their strength, as well as to nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved a most valuable supporting tonic and invigorating nervine. By its timely use, much serious sickness and suffering may be avoided. The operating table and the surgeons' knife, would, it is believed, seldom have to be employed if this most valuable woman's remedy were resorted to in good time. The "Favorite Prescription" has proven a great boon to expectant mothers by preparing the system for the coming of baby, thereby rendering childbirth safe, easy, and almost painless.

Bear in mind, please that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse, because of the uncertainty as to their composition and harmless character, but is a MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its make-up. In this connection it may not be out of place to state that the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, and sold through druggists, all the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of these endorsements will be sent to any address, post-paid, and absolutely free, if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

H. H. GRANICE, Editor.

The Women of Finland.

From time to time we hear of the progress of affairs in Finland since the admission of women to the rights of citizenship and the administration of the government, and we are particularly interested in this thing that most Americans regard as, and are pleased to call, an experiment. We are interested because a noticeable percentage of our own American women are advocating and asking for the rights of suffrage. The most skeptical must admit that the so-called experiment is working successfully and surprisingly harmonoiusly in Finland. The experiment reveals the fact that the women there have the proper idea and exercise the greatest judgment in the management of affairs. Their selection of representatives reveals this fact. Their choice is made along broad lines and their candidates comprise teachers, editors and working girls. One of the latter class, the head of the servants union, received the biggest majority of all the women candidates because of her understanding of labor conditions, the settlement of which is one of the prime objects of the wives and mothers of the northern peninsular. Here are women who have had none of the advantages which our women are thought to enjoy—contact with the advanced and progressive male American citizen—yet by some mysterious process of governmental evolution, they have attained judgment and prudence in the directing of their affairs that would be hard to equal right here in America. They have not chosen agitator or idealist to promulgate their plans and accomplish their aims, but women who represent the phases of life which they seek to enlarge and better. In matters educational they realize the vast amount of suggestion for good legislation that may be set forth by women who have made a life study of this most important work—the outlining of citizenship. It involves not only the perfection of the school system but also the establishing of libraries and reading rooms and the diffusing of knowledge to the ultimate good of the people.

The women editors have made a study of affairs in general from a woman's standpoint and so know conditions and realize possibilities that have not come under the notice of their sisters. The wide scope which their profession embraces makes them valuable factors in outlining the welfare of the gentler sex. They have to do with the regulation of the license given the press and similar matters. They better than any class can make known the value of women in matters civic, in work of improvement and sanitation.

The representatives of the working women being of them can sway legislation by heartfelt pleas and sound arguments which are bound to uplift the laboring class and better conditions of the lowly. Child labor will come under their jurisdiction and be regulated through their efforts. In the fields, the shops and the factories their influence will soon be felt.

The Cannibal King From Glen Ellen.

There is talk that Jack London as king may be hailed
By the natives of Borneo land.
For the shock of his hair and the steel of his eye
Would make him a potentate grand.
But those of us here read such reports
With a sniff and a scorn at the tellin',
For well do we know that he's charmed for aye
By the rills and the hills of Glen Ellen.

There is talk that a colony new he will found
Where animals strange he will master,
Where life with new zest
Will charm him from the West,
And plots will grow faster and faster;
But those of us here read such reports
With assurance that his thoughts are dwellin',
Despite every charm of the cannibal land,
On the rills and the hills of Glen Ellen.

There is talk that by Roosevelt he will be joined,
In the jungle of beasts never captured,
To get at the facts of these animals strange
With lynx and with lion enraptured.
But those of us here laugh at these tales
But are proud of the yarns he is sellin'
For we call him our own
And know he'll come home
To the rills and the hills of Glen Ellen.

Too much stress cannot be put upon the caution which should be used by automobile drivers on the roads of our valley. It is an ideal trip for motor cars and the roads are free from the many dangerous curves and grades which are common in many localities. There are no restrictions and the privilege should be respected and appreciated by cautious driving.

A sale of realty was ordered in the estate of Owen Burns in a bond of $8,000.

The sale of realty in the estate of Mary Ann LaPorte was confirmed to James T. Butler for $1,500.

The final accounts were settled and distribution ordered of the estates of William H. Rodgers, Thomas M. Samuels and Dexter Tuttle.

The fifth annual accounts of the estates of Elizabeth McNamara and Loretta McNamara were settled.

The estate of T. T. Park was set aside to the widow.

A. B. Swain was named administrator on the estate of Reuben M. Swain in a bond of $100.

These probate matters were continued; Estates of Louis Blum, Ray Victor Crowell and Waldo Tomassini, to June 24th; Cornelia G. Ohm to July 1st.

In the case of the State against T. F. Marks the defendant entered a plea of "not guilty," and the trial was set for August 6th.

The trial of the suit of the Sonoma Stone and Construction Company vs. A. E. Chartrand was reset for July 9th.

These matters went over: Burns vs. Burns, Frese vs. Peterson and Burel vs. Burel, to June 24th.

The suit of Wilhite vs. Wilhite, on motion for alimony and counsel fees, was continued to June 24th.

Forest Fires.

The attention of all persons who inhabit or frequent the forested areas of California is called to the following abstract of the forest laws:

Stats. 1907, ch. 536, makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than five hundred dollars to commit any of the following acts:

1. To set fire, or cause or procure fire to be set to any material being or growing on lands not the property of the person who sets such fire without the permission of the owner of the land, except that camp fires may be built on unenclosed lands if the owner has not forbidden such building in any way and, provided the builder totally extinguishes the fire before leaving it.

2. To allow fires lawfully set to escape from the control of the person having charge thereof or to spread to the lands of another.

3. To build a fire anywhere (excepting camp fires, and fires set to facilitate redwood logging) during a dry season without first obtaining written permission from a fire warden.

4. To use any engine or boiler except such as use oil as fuel near any forest, brush or grass land unless such engines or boilers are provided with adequate devices to prevent the escape of fire from any part.

5. To refuse to obey the summons of any fire warden to aid in extinguishing fires. (Note: for this the fine is not less than ten dollars.)

Further information may be obtained by addressing

SONOMA, JUNE 22, 1907.

Official Paper of Sonoma.

BRIEF MENTION

Daunt does the only reliable watch repairing. *

Now is the time to lay concrete sidewalks. See Trudgen, the stone mason, about it. *

Any repair work left at Mrs. Lutgen's will receive prompt attention by Daunt. *

Mrs. Ida D. Dorman has been named by Judge Denny special administratrix on the estate of Mary E. Nordin, who died here last Monday. Robert A. Poppe is the attorney for the administratrix.

Rev. J. K. Harrison, formerly pastor of the Santa Rosa Congregational Church, attempted to commit suicide on June 3d by cutting his throat. The reverend gentleman has been traveling in the South Sea Islands, and the attempt to end his life was made in Papeete, Tahiti.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Cummings were over from Petaluma Thursday.

Mrs. W. H. Hanger and Mrs. Hattie Breitenbach were Sonoma visitors to Petaluma Wednesday.

Emile Clasquin has accepted a position with the Northwestern Pacific Railroad as a machinist in the machine shops at Tiburon.

Mrs. N. Haraszthy and Mrs. S. A. Ringstrom left for their home in Oakland this morning after a pleasant sojourn here of two weeks.

H. F Lord, the tailor, of El Verano, was in town yesterday for the first time since he was injured in the automobile accident a couple of weeks ago. He is improving rapidly and will be ready for business in a day or two.

Horse Runs to His Death.

A horse belonging to W. H. Hyde was so badly injured last Saturday night in a runaway accident that he was shot by Officer Ryan to end his sufferings. The animal was attached to a go-cart and was being driven into town by a young man named Andreaux. When nearly opposite the Hotz residence on Broadway the horse bolted and ran into N. Tomasi's double rig which was going in the opposite direction. The impact was so great that the pole of the Tomasi rig entered the chest of the fractious runaway to the depth of a foot or more. The animal dropped in its tracks but was not killed outright, being subsequently shot by Officer Ryan to end its sufferings.

GLORIOUS FOURTH IN THE OLD TOWN.

Sonoma Will Celebrate the Day in a Fitting and Patriotic Manner.

The committee having the celebration of the Fourth of July in hand in this place have perfected all their plans and, undoubtedly, Sonoma will be well up with her sister towns in the matter of attractions to be offered on our national holiday.

Hon. Emmet Seawell, of Santa Rosa, has been selected as orator of the day and, as he is an eloquent and pleasing speaker, his presence here will do much to arouse the spirit of American enthusiasm among our people.

Robt. A. Poppe will be President of the Day, and, as usual, can be depended upon to give a good account of himself. Miss Hazel Gies will sing the "Star Spangled Banner" and Park's Brass Band of Santa Rosa will head the parade and discourse patriotic airs during the literary exercises.

One of the features will be a series of races to be held under the auspices of the Sonoma Driving Club in the afternoon.

The day's festivities will wind up with a grand ball at Union Hall in the evening under the auspices of the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club.

Closing Exercises of Presentation Convent School.

The closing exercises of the Presentation Convent school, held at Union Hall, last Saturday night brought out an immense throng of the friends and patrons of the school and the large hall was crowded to the doors. The scholars acquitted themselves admirably in every number on the programme and many of them exhibited remarkable dramatic talent in the drama of "Olga." Father Leahy, at the conclusion of the literary exercises, presented the seven young graduates with their diplomas after which he delivered an eloquent closing address. This was followed by dancing until midnight.

The young graduates were Eleanor Inez O'Connor, Isabel Elaine Trudgen, Aimee Bernice Small, Cecilia Agnes Dowdall, Jeanette Gertrude Tomasi, Thomas Eugene Walsh, Otto William Gericke.

Sisters Return Thanks.

The Sisters of the Presentation Convent thank their numerous friends in the valley who helped to make the entertainment of last Saturday evening a financial as well as a social success.

Sonoma's White Elephant.

Sonoma's New City Hall stands to-day as it did a year ago, when, owing to the high prices for labor and material following the destruction of Santa Rosa and San Francisco, all work ceased on the same, the contractor having failed and abandoned the job. A few months ago, however, the city entered into a new contract with Mr. Newman of Napa, who tackled the building with a force of stone cutters and stone masons. For a few weeks it looked as though Sonoma was going to have a new City Hall after all. But it only looked that way, for one day the stonemasons struck for a $6 wage instead of the $5 they were receiving. Fortunately for contractor Newman he had protected himself against just such a contingency by inserting in his contract a proviso that in case of a strike his agreement to complete the building in 150 working days would release him from that part of his obligation. He therefore refused to accede to the demands of the stonemasons, since which time all work has ceased on the building. In the meantime Sonoma's white elephant occupies the center of the Plaza, a fitting monument to the slow way they do things in this town.

Maionchi-Nichelini Suit at an End.

The suit of Maionchi vs. Nichelini has at last come to an end after engaging the attention of the Superior Court of this county and the State Supreme Court for many years. On Wednesday last satisfaction of judgment was entered in the Superior Court of this county in conformity with a recent decision of the Appelate Court. Under the order of the court Nichelini receives $397.60 from the moneys on deposit with the County Clerk, and the plaintiff takes the remainder of the sum $1200, which was originally deposited. A good portion of this, however, is to cover costs of appeal and court expenses

The suit was over a promissory note which belonged to Maionchi and was in possession of Nichelini, who had promised to keep and board Maionchi for the rest of his life. After caring for the old man for a year or more he was committed to the Napa Insane Asylum on the complaint of parties in this place. At a hearing of the case recently judgment was given in favor of B. Nichelini and dismissed as to the other defendants. A motion for a new trial was made, but no appeal will be taken now. Attorney W. F. Cowan represented the plaintiff and Attorney T. J. Butts the defendant.

Agricultural District Directors.

Governor Gillett has appointed a new Board of Directors of Agricultural District No. 4, as follows: John P. Overton, Frank Muther, Thos. P. Keegan, Wm. J. Eardly, Santa Rosa; H. M. LeBaron Valley Ford; J. A. Pryor, Sausalito; David R. Risk, Petaluma. The district is composed of the counties of Sonoma and Marin.

New Drop Curtain for Union Hall.

S. T. Daken, the well-known artist of San Francisco, who removed to Glen Ellen shortly after the big fire and established a studio there, is engaged in painting a new drop curtain for Union Hall. The scenes depicted on the curtain will be essentially local and will represent different parts of the Sonoma Valley. When completed it will be a work of art and a credit to the town.

The City's New Sprinkler.

The Austin sprinkler, recently purchased by the city, was tested on our streets Thursday and Friday and was found to be a great improvement on the old style of sprinkler and does its work thoroughly. The introduction of this sprinkler will save taxpayers money and give them a fine sprinkling service to boot.

The Races on the Fourth.

One of the features of the Fourth in this place will be the races to be held under the auspices of the Sonoma Driving Club, and some good events may be expected. The entries are still open but will close next week, when they will be made known in these columns. Joe Ryan has a few fast nags being trained for the event, one or more of which give promise of being winners.

SUCCUMBS TO CAPITAL SURGICAL OPERATION.

Mrs. Mary E. Nordin, Passes Away Monday After Vain Attempt of Surgeons to Save Her Life.

Mrs. Mary E. Nordin, who has been making the Agua Caliente Springs Hotel her home for several years, died here in a private hospital Monday at the age of sixty years.

Mrs. Nordin had been suffering from a complication of diseases for some time and it was decided by her physician, Dr. Thomson, that a capital operation was necessary in order to save her life. With this object in view she was brought to this place and placed in a private hospital and on Saturday was operated upon by Dr. Thomson, assisted by Drs. Jesse of Santa Rosa, and Nichols of San Francisco. The patient, however, was too far gone to save her life and she died the following Monday.

Mrs. Nordin's life history was a pathetic one. With her husband, Dr. John A. Nordin, she came here from Oakland twelve years ago, with $38,000, which she had inherited from her first husband. Dr. Nordin persuaded her to put her fortune in the Agua Caliente Springs property which he proceeded to open as a health resort. It did not pan out as her husband expected, and before they had been in possession of the premises six months it was mortgaged for $5,000. About this time domestic troubles arose between the husband and wife and both fell into the hands of designing lawyers and their troubles were soon being ventilated in the courts. They became estranged, a divorce followed, and after the litigation was over Dr. Nordin found himself in possession of $1,000 of his wife's money, while her share out of the wreck was a multitude of debts which had piled up against the magnificent property during the litigation and it eventually took all her possessions to meet those obligations, leaving her a penniless and broken hearted woman, the victim of a man who had married her for her money alone.

For several years previous to her death she had been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Theodor Richards, who purchased the property six years ago. Mrs. Nordin was a good, generous-hearted woman and as her remains were borne to Mountain Cemetery last Tuesday there was more than one silent tear shed over the blasted hopes and pathetic ending of the departed.

Collision of Bay Steamers.

The steamers James M. Donahue of the Tiburon ferry line, and Cazadero of the Sausalito ferry, plying between San Francisco and the places named, collided in a dense fog between Angel Island and Alcatraz Tuesday evening. Immediately after coming together the steamers became locked together, otherwise the Donahue would certainly have sunk, as she had a large hole stove in her side. Her passengers were transferred to the Cazadero without mishap and conveyed back to their starting point. It was a very narrow escape for the 250 passengers on board both boats.

Big Time at the Villa.

There will be a big time at El Verano Villa on Wednesday evening, July 3d. The admission to the dance hall will be free and everybody is invited. Mrs. Nevraumont has engaged excellent music and will spare no pains to make the affair a pleasant one to all who attend.

Railway Activity.

The actual construction of the extension of the Northwestern Pacific railroad from Healdsburg through Dry Creek Valley to the lumber belt of Mendocino county will commence in thirty days.

Saturday's Healdsburg Enterprise has this to say of the matter: "Chief Engineers Eades and Zook of the Northwestern Pacific, and Mr. Williams, were in Healdsburg last week and went over the route of the proposed railroad up Dry Creek valley. These gentlemen were making a close inspection and attending to final details. The road is a sure go, and it is given out that inside of thirty days actual construction work will be started. The residents of Dry Creek, through whose lands the road will go, do not look with much favor upon the proposition, as it cuts through the best parts of their vineyards and orchards. Most of the rights of way have already been secured.

Rural Telephone Extension.

J. F. Tate and Geo. Engler of the Rural Telephone Company have been extending their line eastward. The past week they have installed five boxes on the McIntosh, Dresel and Gundlach ranches. The service of our rural telephone company is proving of great benefit to our farmers, most of whom are availing themselves of its excellent service.

Pressing Club

H. F. Lord, the El Verano tailor, has started a Pressing Club. By joining the club you can get one suit of clothes cleaned and pressed and delivered, once a week, for $1 50 per month. Subscription and clothes left at Chas. Dal Pogetto's barber shop will receive prompt attention. See ad. in another column.

GLEN ELLEN

By Aurora.

Mr. J. W. Brand, the carpenter of the California Home, has been very ill with la grippe.

Mrs. Youngman and her son William are at the Youngman bee ranch for a visit of three months. The mother and son now live in Berkeley.

Cherry picking was of short duration in this district. Notwithstanding the ravages of the birds, the crop was a good one. They brought about eight cents a pound.

The Glen Ellen Grange had a good time at the park to-day. The features were the singing of patriotic airs and partaking the good things brought in the lunch baskets.

Mr. Madison and family have rented one of the Justi cottages for the season. They (there are six in all) like the district and may purchase a place if one can be found to their liking.

Captain Eames of the "Snark," the boat in which Jack London is making a seven years cruise, is back here from Honolulu. He was taken ill and could not continue the voyage. The report is that all the crew deserted when the craft reached Honolulu.

EL VERANO.

By Lone Jack.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lamotte visited Sonoma Friday.

The Bellevue Hotel is more poplar than ever and is crowded with guests.

Mrs. Meyer and daughter of San Francisco, are guests at the Oak Grove resort.

The material has arrived here for the completion of six pumps for the Weaver Patent Power and Pump Company.

The Swiss American Hotel is doing a lively business, and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Rossi are kept busy catering to their numerous guests.

Pop Hibbard is the dispenser of liquid refreshments over the Helvetia Hotel bar and would be pleased to have his Sonoma friends drop in and see him.

Hudson & Miller, the new proprietors of the D. & B. saloon in this place, will shortly commence giving a series of boxing matches. A commodious pavilion will be built and an up-to-date twenty-four foot ring will be set up in the arena. It is the intention of Messrs. Hudson & Miller to make their resort a popular one among the sporting fraternity and all the boxing matches pulled off there can be depended upon to be on the dead level.

The Hay Market.

Scott & Magner, the hay and grain merchants of San Francisco, report the hay trade moderately active the past week and that the market has a strong, healthy tone. New hay that has been arriving is selling on the cars in San Francisco at $12 to $15 per ton, depending upon the grade, etc. Old hay is quoted at $12 to $24 per ton for choice wheat, and the other varieties vary between $18 for No. 1 wheat or oat and $11 for alfalfa hay.

DOOR KEYS IN SWEDEN

Curious Custom of Hanging Them Outside the Doors.

HOUSES LOCKED, YET OPEN.

The Dangling Key Informs You the Tenants Are Out, but Friends Who Call Are at Liberty to Unlock the Door and Enter and Rest.

When the Swedes go calling, they lock up and then hang the door key on the bell or the doorknob or some other conspicuous place. When they go visiting for a few weeks, bolts and bars are slid into place, and then out goes the key. If the house is shut up for an entire season or a full year, the gayly swinging door key says "Not at home" to passersby.

There is no kicking your heels on the doormat in Sweden while the bell or knocker awakes the echoes in an empty house. Agents, peddlers, friends and relatives all know this message of the door key and seeing it out pass by.

As can be readily imagined, this strange custom has been put to good use in many instances when visitors were not wanted. Instead of telling the maid to inform callers that Mrs. Jones is not at home the mistress says to Jennie: "Hang out the door key at 3 o'clock this afternoon and bring it in at 5. I don't wish to see any one for a few hours."

About the first of the month in certain districts door keys swing to the breezes in great numbers, and collectors, knowing the custom and also its misuse, scratch their heads in perplexity at this not at home signal.

Many amusing stories are told of creditors sitting down to await the return of their man while the debtor sat on the other side of the locked door and chuckled. There have been instances where a collector has taken the key, unlocked the door and entered the house to be met by the owner, who calmly laughed over his ruse. Again a creditor has entered a house in which he supposes the owner to be hiding only to find it vacant and to be caught by the irate master, arrested and made to pay a fine, while the debtor got an extension of time on his bill.

These illegitimate uses of this very old custom of not only leaving the latchstring out, but also putting the door key at the disposal of all who pass, are not discovered at first glance, and they are really very much in the minority, for Sweden is pre-eminently an honest land. In and around about Stockholm there is very little need of policemen or strong boxes, for every man, however low down in the social scale, seems to have due respect for another's property.

Although a few of the more suspicious, or the foreigners who have not been brought up in this strange custom of leaving the door key out, may lock up with bolts from the inside and use another door for exit when they leave home for an extended visit, the old residents actually leave their homes at the disposal of any who may care to enter.

Friends who call and find the key out feel at perfect liberty to unlock the door, enter and rest a bit before passing on. Strangers seldom misuse the confidence.

The custom started ages ago when it was the usual thing for "holy men" or priests to travel through Swedish villages, stopping to leave their blessing on the households of the neighborhood. These visits were looked forward to with eagerness by the pious Swedes, and it was considered an act of grossest discourtesy to bar the door, for whatever reason, against a holy man. Consequently if a family left home the key was always put out against the arrival of the priest. Meat and drink were left, and should the holy man stop at a vacant house he entered, refreshed himself, left his blessing in the form of a candle or a bottle of holy water or a bit of consecrated green and passed. Thus the custom originated, and, although these quaint villages have become towns and traveling priests have passed away and the influx of other nations has modernized Sweden and brought the evil of theft with it, the door keys still hang out as evidence of trust and open doored hospitality.

A thief seldom takes down one of the keys and enters, for there is the uncertainty about the absence of the residents spoken of to hold him back, and the knowledge that an exposed door key may merely mean that the owner has stepped across to the store and will return any minute makes tampering with property risky business.

These facts, together with the big one that Swedes are one of the most honest people on the face of the globe, make a custom safe there which would be a foolhardy tempting of misfortune in our "land of the free."—Los Angeles Times.

Found an Excuse.

One Easter a Methodist minister in the south wrote to J. Pierpont Morgan and asked him to subscribe to the erection of a new church.

"Since I am an Episcopalian," Mr. Morgan wrote back, "I can't conscientiously join this Easter subscription to the building of a Methodist church. Before erecting your new church, though, you are going, I understand, to tear the old church down. For that purpose I gladly inclose my check for $250."

To please will always be the wish of benevolence; to be admired, the constant aim of ambition.—Dr. Johnson.

Sagacity of the Ancients.

Many quotations came from the works of Thales, the Greek philosopher and one of the seven wise men. It was he who said, "Know thyself," "Few words are a sign of prudent judgment," "Search after wisdom and choose what is most worthy." "There is nothing more beautiful than the world," "Time is the wisest thing, for it invents and discovers all things." He also said that it was the hardest thing in the world to know oneself and the easiest to admonish another. In his youth Thales was urged to marry, but he said, "It is too soon," and later in life upon being urged again he said, "It is too late."

Where the Relief Would Be.

Dr. Story, the late principal of Glasgow university, taking a holiday in the country once, was met by the minister of the district, who remarked: "Hello, principal! You here? Why, you must come and relieve me for a day." The principal replied, "I don't promise to relieve you, but I might relieve your congregation."

Don't!!!

Don't let your child suffer with that cough when you can cure it with Ballard's Horehound Syrup, a sure cure for Coughs, Bronchitis, Influenza Croup and Pulmonary Diseases. Buy a bottle and try it.

B. B Laughter, Byhalia, Miss., writes: "I have two children who had croup. I tried many different remedies, but I must say your Horehound Syrup is the best Croup and Cough medicine I ever used."

For sale at Simmons' drug store.

Galiano's Quinine Hair Tonic.

Joe Galiano, at First Street East, Pinelli building, has introduced into Sonoma a hair tonic, called Quinine Tonic, which is a wonderful remedy for the prevention of baldness. Mr. Galiano has had many years experience under a first-class physician in Europe. A great number of cases of baldness are caused by indigestion, and not as is presumed, by a disease of the scalp. It is not claimed that Quinine Tonic will grow hair on a bald head, as a number of fake tonics are advertised to do, but it is claimed and guaranteed that Quinine Tonic will stop the hair from falling out, and if used twice a week will clear the head from dandruff which will not return as long as the Tonic is used. Quinine Tonic is composed of the five following articles: Pure Alcohol, Quinine, Sulphur, Glycerine and Tumeric. If the Tonic is used and not found as represented, Galiano will refund the money. The Quining Tonic will also save the trouble of shampooing the hair. This Tonic is for sale at both drug stores in Sonoma.

Do Not Neglect the Children.

At this season of the year the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention. The best thing that can be given is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by castor oil as directed with each bottle of the Remedy.

For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm.

It is an antiseptic liniment and prevents blood poisoning resulting from a cut, bruise or burn. It also causes the parts to heal without maturation and in much less time than when the usual treatment is employed. It allays the pain of a burn almost instantly.

For sale by L. S. Simmons.

There are Few people who know how to take care of themselves—the majority do not. The liver is the most important organ in the body. Herbine will keep it in condition. V. C. Simpkins, Alba, Texas, writes: "I have used Herbine for Chills and Fever and find it the best medicine I ever used. I would not be without it. It is as good for children as it is for grown up people, and I recommend it. It is fine for La Grippe." Sold at L. S. Simmons' Drug Store.

He Hadn't Changed a Bit.

The Smiths had invited the minister to dinner. As the last course was reached little Willie, who had been closely watching the guest almost continually through the meal, looked over at him once more and said:

"You haven't changed a bit since you started eating, have you, Mr. Curtis?"

"Why, no," laughed the minister. "Why do you ask that question?"

"Because," blurted Willie, confused by the pairs of eyes focused on him, "because I heard pa tell ma you'd make a big hog of yourself as soon as you got your eye on the corned beef and cabbage."—Bohemian Magazine.

He Had Had Some Help.

The man who applied at headquarters for a "little help" from the charitable association set forth his case with so much tact and moderation that the secretary was beginning to be favorably impressed.

"I can't ask them to do too much," the applicant said modestly. "You see," he continued, in an outburst of delicacy and ingenuousness, "they paid for my wedding last month, and 'twas a real swell one."—Youth's Companion.

Pain of a Wooden Leg.

"Barney's wooden leg has been paining 'im of late," said Scholes to his wife.

"How can that be?" asked Mrs. Scholes irritably.

"Mrs. Barney has been thrashing 'im with it," was the explanation.

The Twins.

Cholmondely—You and your sister are twins, are you not? Marjoribanks—We were when we were children. Now, however, she is five years younger than I.—Cleveland Leader.

Reason serves when pressed, but honest instinct comes a volunteer.—Pope.

Every Man His Own Doctor.

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment or injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must from necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be had when suitable medicines are kept at hand. Chamberlain's Remedies have been in the market for many years and enjoy a good reputation. They sell for 25 cents a bottle.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm (an antiseptic liniment) for cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, swellings, lame back and rheumatic pains.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for constipation, biliousness and stomach troubles.

Chamberlain's Salve for diseases of the skin.

One bottle of each of these five preparations costs but $1.25.

Her Loss.

Gladys—Edith is so sorry she took Herbert's ring back to price it. Penelope—Why so? Gladys—Why, the jeweler said seeing Herbert hadn't been in to settle for it, as he promised, he guessed he'd keep it.

Just the Other Way.

She—Did you ever take your motor car to pieces to see how it worked? He—Well, not exactly. I have taken it to pieces to see how it didn't work.

A Happy Mother

will see that her baby is properly cared for—to do this a good purgative is necessary. Many babies suffer from worms and their mothers don't know it—if your baby is feverish and don't sleep at nights, it is troubled with worms. White's Cream Vermifuge will clean out these worms in a mild pleasant way. Once tried always used. Give it a trial. Price 25 cents.
